VOL. XXII.

STANFORD, KY., TUESDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1894.

NO. 84

LANCASTER, CARRARD COUNTY.

—Mr. Rice Benge, the newly elected jailer, has filed his bond and is ready to enter upon his duties the 1st of January.

—W. S. Miller, of Knoxville, is here closing up some of his old outstanding business. He is looking fat and hearty.

—The Christmas presents to be distributed on the 25th may be numerous, but will not be expensive. Reason why—hard times and scarcity of funds.

—It is thought that the "Ben Davis" and "Wine Sap" apples now upon the market are vastly inferior to the "Miami" and "Janet" of olden time. There is undoubtedly a deterioration in the quality of fruits, and especially so as to apples.

—The urchins of the city have laid aside their base ball bats and taken to stilts. They do this because it is all fun and no work, and though the pay is limited, it shows their willingness to do something, however nonsensical it may appear.

—The marriage of Mr. Fisher Gaines and Miss Mamie Curry at the Christian church Wednesday afternoon attracted an immense crowd of the citizens of the town and county. The ceremony was performed by Eld. Gowen in his usual excellent style and everything was conducted with order and decorum. The ushers were polite and attentive; the music was charming and decorations of the church magnificent. The bride and groom, after receiving the congratulations of friends, took carriages for Danville, where a banquet awaited them at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

—Miss Katie Simpson is spending the holidays with Miss Jessie Marksbury. Miss Mae Ware, of Hopkinsville, is the guest of Mrs. R. E. McRoberts. Mr. F. E. Hughes is visiting relatives here. Misses Alice Young, Mattie Walker, Ora Ray and Georgia Miller are at home from school to spend Xmas. Mr. Hugh Grant is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Grant. Miss Carrie Curry entertained Mr. and Mrs. Fisher Gaines Friday evening. Mr. H. A. B. Marksbury has returned from a business trip to Cincinnati. Mr. A. H. Rice is here from Dayton, Ohio. He will return Wednesday with his wife, where they will reside in the future.

"HAPPY JACK"

In a Land Where There are no Fleas.

PONT STANLEY, FALKLAND ISLANDS Oct. 20th, 1894—I shall try to be careful and not tire you readers with this communication; shall begin with the town and its people as I see them.

Stanley has a short 1,000 people, is beautifully situated upon one of the loveliest bays that surround the two main islands, on a gentle slope running back from the bay without a break in the slope which renders the wide paved and piked streets perfectly level the long way of the town with only a slight elevation for the cross streets. There are numbers of fine residences here as you can find in Lincoln county, while there is not a shanty or tumble-down structure in it, and there are no rags or misery, while dogs and bed bugs have never invaded the islands.

I have seen grown people here who have never been so far as West Falkland, who never saw a tree, field of wheat, corn, hemp or tobacco, or anything that is cultivated, who never laid eyes on a big road wagon, a pair of horses to a fine carriage, a railroad or steam or electric car, a mill for grain or lumber, a factory for fabrics, not even a public road of the roughest kind. Think of a woman who has never thought of looking for a flea before going to bed, yet the people are as cultivated and refined in every social and business way, as in any part of our country. The ladies are well educated and accomplished—have all the new music and songs, and the young gentlemen know how to assist them in all the dances that our boys assist our girls in anywhere in the United States, whenever a girl is in need of that kind of help. I had hardly landed before "After the Ball" and "Daisy" was ringing in my ears, while one young lady "stirred the blood in an old man's heart" by singing in sweet melody, "My Old Kentucky Home." I felt like taking her in my arms, one time again low. My heart got so big I had to go outdoors to turn round. Stanley is a poor place for a numskull, and he seems to have known it out and stayed away and a fellow who is not sharp enough to drive down is hard to find in the Falklands. Everybody was up to snuff before coming here to live—except me, and if you undertake to sit down on a native, you will find yourself seated on a flat rock if you are not careful. As a proof of their abuteness one fellow sold a down East Yankee a ship load of peat to run his ship to Boston; they use peat for fires here, the Yankee never got out of the bay with his peat. The chap who sold the peat was born and raised in East Falkland, was 23 years old when he made the sale and—had never been from home, and I am praying that we never will go the United States, because a raw hand who can do that, could break up a half dozen Jay Goulds, if he had good training. Tell Stanford to look out, he is living yet and is worse than any Mis-souri, Kansas or Texas bank. I hope he may never see Sister Hayden or Aunt Cath.

They have the Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist and Baptist churches here and the same kind of religion seems to prevail that I have seen everywhere I have ever been. You can't tell the sheep from the goats. It makes me feel like I was at home.

The Falisks (all told) are about as large as 15 or 20 counties like Lincoln and have about 2,000 people living out of Stanley. Twenty-five years ago there were not exceeding 5,000 sheep on those islands, now there are 750,000 or more, and last year's output of wool was 3,797,194 pounds, and that don't amount to a snap of your finger, when compared with the same business in Patagonia and Terra-del-Fuego, where they are just beginning and where they have the same kind of country and same kind of grass and the same way of handling their wool as here. They only began 10 years ago, and as the islands have now about as many as they can carry, they ship their surplus of ewes and bucks to those countries for breeders. Terra-del-Fuego is about the size of Kentucky. Christmas, when the shearing begins, the sheep carry their own fleeces to the sea board—are sheared, the wool compressed into 500 pound bales, loaded on a ship at the sheep pen, and away it goes to market, and this being the only business there is no use for roads. There are no burrs. The wool is of the finest quality of its kind, that is, the coarse is the very best coarse, &c. Every care is taken in breeding. The shepherds absolutely live among their sheep. Nothing grows in those countries but grass. After it has been closely grazed and well tramped it seems to form a sod, that is more like blue grass than any grass I have ever seen. It stands the winter precisely as blue-grass and furnishes the finest grazing. Cattle and Merino sheep have played out.

In the Falklands a thief and murderer have no way of escape. They can't swim the Atlantic, nor is there a hiding place. Argentine five years ago sold no wheat. Last year she exported 30,000,000 bushels. How is that for a new scholar? Looks like she is spelling up towards head, don't it? Walter A. Wood has his agents and bidders there as well as in New Zealand, Ronanula and India. I came down with two of his agents, and saw lots of U. S. binders in Montevideo, cheaper than in Stanford. The world seems to be moving and Uncle Sam must look to his laurels. Everybody, regardless of age, sex, or previous condition of servitude will please take this as a personal letter to themselves and write accordingly. I have not been sick a day since I left.

Good-Bye,
J. H. MILLER.

A Winchester merchant last week advertised "milliners for a song," and a wag come in and picked a fine one and warbled "Sweet Marie." Then he walked out, and the merchant swore at the office boy.

Oapt. Buford A. Tracy, a prominent citizen of Winchester, was accidentally killed by being caught in an elevator shaft. His neck was broken.

Mound City, Mo., has a 13-year-old boy who weighs 242 pounds, and Casco, Me. a 12-year-old girl who weighs 225 pounds.

G. C. Bottoms, a Harrodsburg dry goods merchant, has failed for $30,000.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Castle, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism; his stomach was disordered, his liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward G. Pease, of Elizabethtown, Ill., running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and when it is sound and well John Speaker, Catawba O., had five large bottles of his leg medicine and he was comfortable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box Buckle's Aracea Salve cured him entirely. Sold by A. R. Penny, druggist, Stanford.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—The social event of the season was the large dining at the hospitable home of Mrs. Clara Singleton, given in honor of Mr. J. F. Commins and wife previous to their departure for Stanford. The menu which graced the table was delightful in every respect. There were over 100 invitations issued and all were unanimous in pronouncing the occasion one long to be remembered.

—Among the holiday festivities at Crab Orchard, the one most to be remembered was the musical at College Home, Friday night, which was to the regret of both teachers and scholars, only enjoyed by the parents and near relatives, on account of scarcity in house room. The musical was a grand success, each pupil acquitted herself very creditably and deserving special mention. The chief feature of the occasion was "Santa Claus' Mistake," which was participated in by every scholar and altho' but little time was consumed in practice, not a mistake occurred and it would not have been more beautifully rendered had there been months of practice devoted to it. One act of the play was a Christmas tree laden with beautiful presents for the children and distributed by Santa Claus, which was of course much enjoyed both by the pupils and audience. After the play ended refreshments in abundance were served; the Professor and his wife then gave the home over to the young folks and they made merry and enjoyed the treat immensely until late in the evening. Our town now has what we have long needed and our citizens should exert their every effort in behalf of the success of the College Home. A school with such competent instructors as Dr. Stapp, wife and daughter is an honor to any town and we sincerely trust the principal will meet with such unbounded success that he will think it profitable to remain in our midst many years and instruct our children both in knowledge and social duties.

—Rev. Will Anderson is home from Money Creek College to spend the holidays. Johnny Edmiston, of Georgetown, came home Friday to spend Christmas. Mr. Craig Stafford, of Campbellburg, and Miss Anna Austin, of Paint Lick, who attended College Home, left Saturday for their homes to spend the holidays. Miss McWhorter, of Laurel county, is visiting her brother, Mr. John McWhorter. Mrs. Alice Newland spent a few days very pleasantly with friends and relatives in Cincinnati during the past week. Part of her visit was with Miss Kate Cochran at the Conservatory of Music, where Miss Kate, as her teacher says, making fine progress in music. Miss Salie Green is spending a few days with friends in Lancaster. Mr. W. A. Brooks is home to spend the holidays with his mother. Prof. Smith has gone to his home in Ohio to spend Christmas. Mr. and Mrs. Joe McClure are now at home to their friends in their new and cozy little cottage. Miss Mand Pettus is visiting her sister, Mrs. Cummings, in Stanford. Mr. J. T. Chadwick and little Eddie Bailey are visiting friends in Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Melinda Ross was unexpectedly called to Paint Lick Thursday to attend the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Mary Cochran, who died of stomach trouble. Mrs. Cochran was well and favorably known in this section, having been raised here. Her many friends and relatives regret her premature death, as it came so sudden it found all unprepared for the sad news.

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

STANFORD, KY., DECEMBER 25, 1894

W. P. WALTON.

ANOTHER Christmas day has dawned upon the earth, bringing with it gladness and good cheer to millions of hearts. No matter how caustic it may have become, it is a stony heart indeed that does not warm up and beat faster on the annual recurrence of this day of days, as it recalls the happy time when Santa Claus was regarded as a living, breathing personality, omnipresent, omnipotent and of fabulous opulence, a fat and jolly old gentleman, who drove a team of reindeer to a sleigh filled with everything that childish heart could wish and which it could get by hanging up a stocking near the chimney that he would descend on his rounds. It is one of the sweetest and most harmless delusions that childhood enjoys. Could anything more charmingly illustrate their abiding confidence and innocence as this stocking-hanging and impatience for Christmas morning to come? And yet there are people so unutterably good as to think or rather claim, that it is wrong to encourage the delusion. Hades is full, or will be, of such good, goody creatures. It can do no harm and the memory of it will linger lovingly as long as life shall last. What joy could the millions of little hearts have experienced this morning equal to that of awaking and finding their stockings rammed and crammed with what they most desired?

While commanding and cherishing this innocent myth, we have nothing but execration for the other custom of celebrating the grandest event in the history of the world by raising pandemonium and doing other heathenish deeds at variance with the spirit and traditions of the day. The firing of bombs and other explosive may be well enough for the 4th of July, but it is out of sense and reason to celebrate the natal day of the Savior of the world in such a way. It is strange too that while peace and good will should animate the hearts of every human being the occasion should be embraced by the blood thirsty for deeds of vengeance and murder. May there be a complete change in these things this glorious time and may thankfulness to God and brotherly love have full course and be glorified. Let us not forget that we are celebrating the birth of Him, who brought salvation to the world, a Savior which is Christ the Lord and join in the glad hosanna "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will to men."

Extending to each of our patrons, the paid up as well as the delinquent subscriber, the compliments of the season, and wishing them many returns of the day, we close the volume of 1894, to begin a new and with fresh vigor, Jan. 1, 1895.

The report of Warden George gives the gratifying information that the convicts at Frankfort are nearly self supporting. There were received during the year 561 prisoners, leaving after deducting discharges and deaths 1,156 within the walls, Dec. 1, of whom 133 are serving life sentences. The cost of feeding and clothing the prisoners was an average of 14.25 cents per day per convict. The net earnings of convict labor were $6,833.66, which only lacks $801.71 of feeding and clothing them for the year. An awful object lesson for prohibition is the statement that of the prisoners received during the year 429 claimed that they committed their crimes while drunk. This may or may not be true. Drunkenness is no excuse for crime, but it is often given as an excuse, and in a majority of the cases truthfully.

On being notified of his election as honorary member of the Young Men's Bradley Club at Louisville, Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, acknowledged the honor and took occasion to pay Col. Bradley a high compliment and express his respect and admiration for him. And speaking of the gallant colonel the opposition, if there was opposition, to his nomination for governor, is melting away and his is the only name heard now in connection with it.

The nomination of Mr. Clark for U. S. district judge of Tennessee, was promptly confirmed, but it was recalled in order to investigate charges against him of unprofessional conduct, such as taking fees on both sides of a case, &c. Those who know him say that he is incapable of such acts and that the disproof of the charges will be an easy matter.

A Sam Jones imitator down in Daviess county came near being mobbed by his hearers, who reconsidered and gave him a reasonable time to leave. He didn't take half of it, but standing not on the order of his going went at once to more congenial fields.

The Carlisle currency bill has been doctored until its daddy hardly knows it. The prospect of any currency reform at this session has gone glimmering. Meanwhile the gold reserve is dwindling and another sale of bonds will soon be necessary.

THERE were three killings in Kentucky Saturday night, a pretty fair start for the usual Christmas slaughter.

President Cleveland is back in Washington. He killed 50 ducks in one day, while in South Carolina.

—A good crowd attended Lancaster court yesterday, but very little trading was done. There were about 50 cattle on the market. Butcher cattle were $11 at 2½c and a few feeders brought 3.30. Pung horses and mules were slow at any price. Dick Gentry bought privately 26 121 pound hogs at 3½c and 22,1350 pound cattle at 3.37.

I had seen Chamberlain's Cough Kennedy advertised in the paper and thought it would help him, and am happy to say that after two doses he slept until morning. I gave it to him next day and a cure was effected. I keep this remedy in the house now and as soon as any of my children show signs of croup I give it to them and that is the last of it."

SIX TIME.—On Sunday, the 16th, Mr. Robert Fenzel, who has charge of the clock on the court-house, changed it from solar to standard time, but the moss back magistrates met Saturday and ordered that it be set up to solar time again, which is 20 minutes faster. John Bailey moved that the clock be turned over to the town to keep in repair and run as it sees fit, which should have carried, but it didn't.

The College closed for the holidays with a pleasant little recital, in which all the music and elocution pupils took part and acquitted themselves most creditably to themselves and to their teachers, Misses Cowen and Hughes. As there were 32 numbers on the program, our space will not permit a notice of each performer, and it would be invidious to particularize when each did so well. The entertainment closed with a solo by Miss Cowen, which sent everybody away with a feeling of gladness that he went.

The store of Mr. S. H. Shanks was entered by thieves Saturday night, who got away with at least $200 worth of goods. Entrance was effected by raising the bolt of the cellar door with a wire, and then boring a hole in the door of the cellar steps large enough to insert the hand and pull out the bar that holds it down. Fortunately Mr. Shanks had removed every cent of money from the drawer, but the way they took off overcoats, shoes, hats, bolts of cotton, &c., showed that the scamps must have had a team to haul them away. The store was greatly torn to pieces, goods being scattered helter skelter in great confusion. There is no clew to the thieves, but as the job was evidently done by those fully acquainted with the room, there are hopes that they may yet be apprehended.

This is the second time Mr. Shanks has suffered from thieves in two years and he is getting pretty tired of it. In another column he offers a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of the rascals and is going to leave nothing undone to bring them to punishment.

The killing of a prominent farmer of Brooks county, in Southern Georgia, is reported to have caused a conflict in which seven negroes were shot to death, and a race war seems imminent.

Mrs. Edna Craycraft, of Robertson county, took "Rough on Rats" when her sweetheart went back on her, but the doctors saved her with their stomach pumps.

Miss Lucile Gruber, of Toledo, O., has filed a suit for $75,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage against Roswell Messinger, a young man who recently fell heir to $100,000. It is kind in her not to try to take it all.

CHURCH AFFAIRS.

Paint Lick, Garrard county, has 18 young men who are studying for the ministry.

Rev. J. W. Fitch closed this week a very successful meeting at Pleasantville, which resulted in 33 additions to the church.—Winchester Democrat.

The Pope has again forbidden members of the Catholic church to join secret societies, a decree emphasizing this interdiction having just been promulgated.

We are sorry to record the fact that Bro. C. S. Lucas, pastor of First Christian Church, of Alleghany, is again disabled. He has recently undergone a critical surgical operation for abscesses on the brain with assurance of recovery in time, which we earnestly pray may be realized.—Penn Disciple.

The Christian church has now called that excellent preacher, Rev. W. E. Ellis, for an indefinite time, and everybody who knows him is glad. The church was packed Sunday morning as evidence of it and he did not send them away empty. He always gives his hearers something to think about.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

FOR SALE One 2-horse Wagon, nearly new, Fairbanks Scales that draw 4,000 lbs. Those wishing to purchase will please call on me at Stanford. John S. Bledsoe

At their final meeting Saturday the magistrates failed to adopt any of the plans for road working named by the last Legislature, so it will devolve upon the new fiscal court to do so. Sheriff Menefee's delinquent list of 705 names was allowed and sold to him for $10. Judge Varnon was allowed $60 additional for making settlements and S. M. Owens was given the balance of his claim of $69.80 which was rejected at the last meeting. An order was made to pay J. S. Owings, Jr., $125, to supplement his pay as Commonwealth's attorney. J. B. Paxton was appointed to settle with the sheriff, and after the passage of a number of minor claims, the court sat up shop forever.

Under the new order of things only four magistrates will compose the new court, against 16 now.

FADLEY'S CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

BY FRANK B. WELCH.

Young Mr. Fadley was in a worry. He had some Christmas presents to buy, and what to get was what worried him. First and foremost, there was Miss Damon, upon whom he was anxious to create an impression—she must have something appropriate and elegant, whether anybody else got anything or not. Then there was his bosom friend and constant companion Harvey, a good fellow who had placed him under obligation times without number—he could not forget. This being the case, Fadley started out to rummage the stores.

He overhauled all the leading shops in town, and by Christmas Eve had collected what he thought was a pretty sensible lot of presents for an amateur Santa Claus to get together. For the lady of his choice he had a handsome toilet outfit of combs, brushes, powder puffs and boxes, manicure implements, hand mirrors, and no end of other elegant articles for feminine use. These were all inclosed in an elaborately beaded and lined case which was neatly wrapped and all ready to be sent to the intended recipient. For his friend Harvey he had an elegant shaving set, consisting of razors, brushes, cups, hoses, etc., done up in a substantial case which was also ready to be dispatched to the home of his friend.

Not daring to trust a messenger with the presents for fear of some mistake Fadley started out himself to deliver them. First he called at Harvey's home, timing his call so as not to catch his friend at home. With his friend's mother he intrusted the package, she promising that it should not be tampered with until Harvey should open the door. A moment later he heard the sound of a knock. It was the herald of Christmas-tide, and the gifts were safe. The door was opened, and in walked the young lady. "I bring you glad tidings of great joy, which shall be unto all people."

It is peculiarly the Christ day, a time when the beauty of Hisself-abnegating life is reflected in sublime majesty. Never a selfish shadow obscured His path; His the grandest of all epitaphs; He lived and He died that others might live forever. A man without a home, He has gladdened and brightened millions of homes. He was a man of sorrows, acquainted with grief, yet from His presence an ocean of consolation has spread out and covered the earth with its waters of healing. His last prayer was an intercession for His enemies, and His last sigh a breath of confidence in God.

The glory song of the herald angels, sung at the first Christmas, that pean of praise to God and pledge of peace to man, shall never die. The grandest of all carols, dearest of all angel hymns, time has destroyed none of its sweetness and has preserved all of its promise. Peace and amity dwell where the spirit of Jesus prevails, and each Christ day is a benison indeed to those who see His face through the clouds and the mists of mortality.

Christmas, the home day, the Christ day! May its lessons and its blessings gladden all hearts and make a truth of the common salutation: "A Merry Christmas be upon you."

HIS CHRISTMAS GREETING.

BY ELIZA ARMSTRONG.

The cemetery gates closed with a clang behind one man as he stepped out into the snow-covered road; it was almost dark and he nearly ran into the other man who stumbled along as if very weary.

"Yonder's th' shortest way into town, isn't it?" the latter asked.

"Yep. Most folks want to know the shortest way out," he grinned.

"I'm glad enough to get out o' where I was," muttered the other. As he lighted his pipe the flame showed his pale face.

The other man edged away. "Ye ain't been in jail?"

"Worse. Penitentiary. Ye needn't be accursed, though—I've had enough. Didn't do it, either, but, ye see, I was kind of good for nothin', an' the judge was running for reelection, so I went up. Got out for Christmas, though, on account o' good behavior."

"Um, well, so 'tis Christmas time—folks oughtn't to be hard on nobody now."

"No. I most took ye for a Christmas ghost a bit ago."

it himself the next morning. Then he called at the abode of Miss Damon. The ring was answered by a servant, who said the young lady was out doing her Christmas shopping. Here was a piece of good luck. Leaving the package with explicit instructions as to its delivery Fadley said he would call Christmas night, as per previous arrangement with the young lady.

There was a big job of his hands, and Fadley mentally patted himself on the back at having done it up so neatly. He pictured to himself the glad surprise of Miss Damon when she should receive the substantial evidence of his regard, and chuckled over the little surprise in store for his dear friend and chum, Harvey. Early Christmas morning Miss Damon received her package, upon opening which she exclaimed:

"Well, I never! Just as if I were in need of a shave. Who ever has been so kind as to furnish me with this tonsorial outfit?" Then her eye caught the corner of a card sticking out of one of the compartments of the case. "This she drew forth and read:

H. H. FADLEY

"Oh!" said the mischievous young lady; "Mr. Fadley, eh? Well, just wait till he comes this evening. I'll bawl 'Next' at him; see if I don't."

Of all the mortified swains that ever got into a pickle Fadley felt the worst when the fiend of his heart flashed the shaving tools on him. He was utterly speechless, until it occurred to him that his friend Harvey had his dear one's toilet set and one of the sweetest of little notes that even a lovesick fellow had put together.

"Great snakes!" thought Fadley; "if he says that note I'll never hear the last o' it." Then he explained the mistake and begged off long enough to hasten over to his friend's house to exchange the packages. He found Harvey at home, and as that冥顽不化的young man jerked him into the hall he slyly inquired:

"Is my hat on straight, Ira dear, and do you my baubles look?"

"Say!" hereupon ejaculated Fadley, "if you don't shut your head I'll break it for you."

For there was no time to be lost, so Fadley, after duly acknowledging the mistake, gathered up the toilet set and sped back with it to the one for whom it was intended.

That was not the last of the joke on him, by any means. The thing leaked out, as such things invariably do, and poor Fadley was so annoyed by facetious allusions to his Santa Claus experience that he was compelled to threaten with consequences dire anyone who mentioned the subject.
